

- I am confident that God has called me to be a part of Mercy Hill.
- I am willing to be held accountable in the following ways...
 -  Loving God: I will forsake the things that create barriers between God and me and, instead, cultivate communion with him through spiritual disciplines such as prayer, personal (and family) worship, repentance, and pursuing growth in areas of weakness.
 -  Loving One Another: I will avoid judgmental attitudes towards others and the tendency to “major on minors.” Instead, I will strive to build gospel-centered community with those who are a part of Mercy Hill.
 -  Loving the Lost: I will repent of living an isolated life from those around me and begin to make changes in my schedule and priorities that will allow me to enter into the lives of others (living “missionally”) in the way I speak and in the way I act.
 -  Living the Mission: I will learn to live out our mission to “reach the lost for Jesus through authentic Christian living” expressing this through the following core values:
 - Jesus
 - missional
 - community
 - mercy
 - discipleship
- I rejoice in the lessons I’ve learned in other fellowships and churches and seek to bring to this new community such past blessings. At the same time, I recognize that, God is calling me away from my own church home in order that I might lock arms with Mercy Hill, for this season of life, as my local church. This includes...
 -  participating in launch team meetings
 -  helping or serving this new church in a way that suits my gifts and skills, partially identified through the PLACE survey
 -  being a part of a “crowded house” gathering where I can experience and demonstrate “authentic Christian living”
 -  writing out my own “personal story of grace”
 -  attending the stated public worship services of Mercy Hill & inviting others to join me in this adventure
- I am willing to generously give of my creativity, time, spiritual gifts, and finances to fulfill the mission of Mercy Hill: “reaching the lost for Jesus through authentic Christian living.”
- I have read the essay, “Understanding the Realities of Church Planting.” I am willing to wholeheartedly serve and support the mission of Mercy Hill in the messiness, ambiguity, and adventure of the early stages.

In awareness of and submission to these expectations, I commit myself to the Mercy Hill Presbyterian Church Launch Team.
